

Come Quickly, Lord Jesus

(1)

Come quickly, Lord Jesus,
    The heart of Your bride
Re-echoes her yearning
    To be at Your side.
We long, blessed Savior,
    to enter our rest,
And pillow our heads on
    Your welcoming breast.
Our sins, which were many,
    Are all washed away;
Our souls, from their darkness,
    Are flooded with day;
O, blessed Redeemer,
    The blood from Your side
Has cleansed us and made us
    A part of your bride.

Come quickly, Lord Jesus,
    Grant us to endure;
The hope of Your coming
    To keep our hearts pure.
Our eyes fixed upon You,
    Who suffered such loss,
We're privileged to share the
    Reproach of Your cross.
Our service is nothing
    Compared to Your love.
The glories that follow
    Await us above.
And should any trophies
    Be ours when we meet,
We'd joyfully lay them
    At Your blessed feet.

Come quickly, Lord Jesus,
    The world lies in sin;
It strives to ensnare us
    In evil again.
It scoffs at Your promise,
    It mocks at our God;
We're pilgrims and strangers
    On enemy sod.
The tears of the righteous
    Like raindrops abound.
The blood of the martyrs
    Cries out from the ground.
How long, blessed Savior,
    Lord Jesus, how long,
We'll join in the chorus of
    Heaven's new song?

Come quickly, Lord Jesus,
    And be our reward.
We long for the shout of
    Our Savior and Lord.
The voice of the Bridegroom
    Will be to the bride
A full compensation
    For all else beside.
The bride in her glory
    Will see You at last
Without spots or wrinkles
    Reflecting her past.
O, blessed Redeemer,
    The Spirit says, "Come!"
The bride in her rapture
    Re-echoes, "Amen!"

(May be sung to the tune of, Flow Gently, Sweet Afton.)
