

“Considerabully”

Consider a bull and you'll picture a cow
With mean-looking horns coming out of his brow;
But a bull is a suffix, as “...b-l-e” shows
That morphs verbs to adjectives everyone knows.

Consider a bully—You'll think of a sneak,
A cowardly thug who oppresses the weak;
But adding a bully to adjectived verbs
Implies some compliance in “...b-l-y”d blurbs.

Consider a blee and you won't say it wrong--
That “...b-l-y” suffix you've known all along--
A simple contraction of “...bully” we do,
So compliant terms aren't pronounced with a “U.”
